BERLIN. April 11.—Chancellor scheidemann. addressing the National Assembly at Welmar on Germany's fuure foreign policy, said the policy would be based on three principles: trict observance of all treaties, unwerving protection of vital German nterests and maintenance of a spirit funreserved conciliation with the enire world.

Herr Scheidemann said he saw the lost danger for the success of this obst danger for the success of this preign policy from within Germany, there incessant convuisions of unrest, trike after strike, and a spirit of re-out threaten the whole house with estruction. He described as scandalous isrespect the arrest of Minister andsherg at Magdeburg early this teck and said that such occurrences hight help to break up the government and to destroy its credit at home and broad.

Dealing with the food situation, the chancellor said that when an increase in the food ration "beckons to our whole people so tortured by underfeeding, when the blockade is loosening, and when the hunger war is laying lown its arms," hundreds of thousinds of hands are idle which alone by their abor can provide the means of payment, without which there will not be to pound of flour or bacon for the wives ind children of the workmen.

The Chancellor asserted that the new evolution in Munich, with a Soviet result to the pound of flour or bacon for the wives and defensive allkinge with the Hungarian and Russian Soviet, endangers elice just at the moment when "we give indisputable proof of our will for leace and our repugnance for any polecy of the mailed fist."

"Dreumers," he continued, "dare gain to set up the banner of war gainst nations with whom we desire omorrow to sit at a conference table."

"We oppose a Soviet republic," continued the Chancellor, "not merely on internal political grounds, but because we want peace, without which we could be ruined."

The Chancellor said he did not seek a alliance with a world revolution which would lead to murder and inserty.
